

Convergence insufficiency-a major review.

(PMID:23231437)

<https://europepmc.org/abstract/med/23231437>

Abstract

Cooper J 1 , Jamal N

Optometry (St. Louis, Mo.) [30 Apr 2012, 83(4):137-158]

Type: Review, Journal Article

Abstract

Convergence insufficiency is a common binocular vision disorder affecting approximately 5% of the population in the United States. It is often associated with a host of symptoms that occur when doing near work, such as reading and computer viewing. This article reviews the existing literature on convergence insufficiency including etiology, diagnosis, sensorimotor findings, and management.